Board of Directors of the Veterans' Home to the fire. Tom Younger, an employe of Association hold a meeting to-day, and do Weidler's saw mill, fell, and was run over by cided to purchase the Clark tract of land in a steamer. His chest was crushed and groin cut. The injuries are considered fatal.

No solution has been reached to the mys tery of finding the body in the river yesterday. Medical experts say the man could not have cut his throat in the manner this was done. The body is not yet identified. The steamer at Astoria, still retaining his ticket, came to Portland, afterwards got into some deadfall and was murdered.

Captain Wilson and Dr. Pilkington, i jured Monday in a runsway socident, are re-covering, and are thought to be out of danger. Governor Moody to day appointed Charles A. Cohns of Dallas, Judge of Polk county, vice Judge Isaac Smith, resigned.

THE LAST CONCERT. - During the summer the people of this city have been favored Stevens' instructions. The machinery will with a series of open-air free concerts by embrace new and novel features not heretomilitary bands; alternately by the First Artillery and the Hussar's. These concerts, as funds from citizens of this city. The concerts earth the cause of all this quietness? have been field alternately upon the Plaza and the State Capitol Park, and have, with few exceptions, been given every Tuesday and every Friday night. They have all been well attended, and the appreciation of the efforts of the committee on the part of the general public has been full and pronounced. Last evening the last of the concerts for this year was given. It was held upon the Plaza armento officers valuable assistance, they say. year was given. It was held upon the Plaza, and despite the rather chilly state of the weather a large attendance resulted. It is fair to place the number present at 1,500. The Artillery band occupied a stand northwest of the fountain, and the Hussar's band one to the east, it having been determined in this closing concert to have both bands present. A RASH PUNSTER.—The atmosphere of some sections of this State stimulates wit, and as an evidence of it, a gentleman who has breathed his manbood in with the air of the upper Sierras assaulted this office last evening with a bit of wit that is simply astonding. He desired to know exactly when to rise to get the best view of the come, with its vast stretch of tail, and being informed, said be, "You know that scientists are unsettled as to the composition of the composition o tail-indeed, they do not know what they are. But assuming Professor Blake's theory to be true, that one of these chilly mornings a comet may sweep along and wipe the earth out of existence for its size, and that the fiery messenger will thus be the executive officer and bailiff to carry out the decree of destruction, might not the tail be termed his posse comitatue?" The macgled remains will be decently interred to-day.

At the next meeting of the Board a petition was filed signed by a number of citizens whose children attend at that school, asking that Miss Weir be reinstated. The petition was laid on the table. At the meeting of the Board Monday evening last, some of the petitioners appeared in person and asked that the application be granted. The Board thereupon took the petition from the table, and by the vote of all of the members present the request was denied. The petitioners not being satisfied, a special meeting of the Board ing satisfied, a special meeting of the Board has been called for to night to consider the subject, concerning which there appears to the city, as the guests of Mrs. W. Wheat—There is practically no market in Liverpool, and values at that center are much depressed to day, according to telegraphic advices. The local market seems to be in full sympathy with the foreign situation. It is a long time since proceedings on call at the Produce Exchange were characterized with so little spirit as was etinced this morning. For small spot lots of No. 1, $1 65 was bid, but the demand at that figure was comparatively insignificant. Bidding on future account showed a weak condition of affars. The only safe recorded was a lot of 100 tons buyer November at $1 70 The best bid for seller November, was $1 60 \(\frac{3}{2}\) ctl, with no offerings for October, $i 60 was the highest bid. Possibly the occurrence of Collection Day and the near closing of the month had some influence in creating the indifferent feeling that seemed to prevail.

Eastern Merchants, Our Competitors

The sparse and scattered condition of the population on the Pacific coast has made trading facilities small and limited, except in a few large towns and cities. People have had to content themselves with the high prices and poor assortments of the country merchants. Within the last few years, however, there has been a marked change, and we should hardly dare to guess how great a business is being done now THROUGH THE MAILS with city dealers.

This trade is largely shared by Eastern Merchants. They are sending elaborately illustrated Catalogues and Samples everywhere. There is not a hamlet on the coast which is not getting its share of these books almost daily. With these Eastern Houses we come in direct competition.

We, too, are sending out thousands of PRICE LISTS AND SAMPLES OF GOODS, and we have reason to believe that nearly all who get our books are acquainted with these Eastern Merchants, and regularly receive Catalogues, etc., from them. Wehavenodoubt, however, of one factthat our goods and prices are constantly being put side by side, and carefully compared with Eastern prices and Eastern goods. Thus we have not only the merchants of Sacramento for competitors, but others much more powerful than they—those who have the world for their market; and the best proof that our prices and goods ARE RIGHT, is the large increase of our trade from individuals and localities formerly supplied by New York, Philadelphia or Chicago

What we have thus far written would hardly be of interest to Sacramento people, were it not for the fact that the goods which are winning such a success for us in the country are IDENTICALLY the same as those sold over the counter, while our ONE PRICE SYSTEM is a guarantee that the prices are the same. If we had two prices, or if we did not sell outside of Sacramento, the facts we have presented would be of little value; but, as it is, we think they present a reasonable proof of what we have often said in regard to the advantages gained in trading at this Establishment.

months after the birth of his gifted son. Deprived of experienced guidance in the direction which Nature had intended him to follow, young Wagner amused himself with original musical and literary composition, imitating a bewildering variety of authors in both. With a practical eye he watched the success of others, and made himself most conspicuous among the aspirants who had something new to offer the public of the kind which had already won their approval. When he was 15 years old one of his compo-When he was 15 years old one of his compositions was put upon the stage, and he has toiled ever since, during the most of the time, against such discouragements of poverty and numerous temporary failures as but few men could go through without suffaring the col-lapse of their hopes. But Wagner has always believed in himself to a degree that would be called excessive but for the fact that he has attained the highest position among living composers.

His fundamental principle is that the poetry and the melody of dramatic music should form unitedly the one and inseparable expression of the story. He symbolizes the principal springs of action in the drama onizing with the music a the words. The subjects of his greatest pro ductions are founded exclusively upon myth
